

BioCoS is comprised of a multi-disciplinary research team aiming to support applied and basic research fields (i.e. bio-medical, agronomic, computer engineering). Our core mission is to offer services and technologies that help transform omics data into knowledge in plant and animal research, food production and biomedicine, supporting public and private research institutes, clinical and diagnostic centers, as well as individual scientists.